

GET IT STRAIGHTThe Boston Globe*Author(s): MICHAEL PRAGER Date: May 27, 2004 Page: H2 Section: Life At Home

Computer peripherals grow sleeker and desktops grow sparer, but the picture below deck is nothing but ugly: Power strips, power transformers, yards of cable, and other stuff sits in an unruly pile, providing a haven for dust bunnies and entangling your toes. A Colorado company's answer is the Complete Cable Manager: Its wire color-coding, Velcro ties, and mounting hardware keep everything not only more organized, but off the floor as well. There are even berths for hubs, modems, or adapters, plus bungee cords to secure them. Is it worth $35? That depends on the mess the computer age has placed at your feet. Available at Micro Center, 730 Memorial Drive, Cambridge., 617- 234-6400, or online at cable-safe.com.

Perform a new search